ODE TO DEATH.

Insatiate scourge of human race!
Fell fiend! in what Tartarian place,
Whose glooms no living soul may trace,
Lov'st thou, Oh Death! to dwell?

Is it by Acheron's deep moan?
Lethe's dull stream? fierce Pl'gethon?
Or where mid curses, flames and groan,
Hiss the dire Furies?

For from those realms on sulphurous storms,
A thousand demons (dragon forms)
Bear thy wing'd chariot, when to arms
Thou call'st thy legions.

And lo! they join in black array;
Grief guards the rear, the van, Dismay
Shades with damp wing—while for their prey,
Famine and anguish howl.

There ravenous Plague lays waste the plains,
Consumption drags her lingering pains,
While haggard Madness clanks his chains
And frenzied Fever raves.

All forms are thine! Night's murkiest shade
Now shrouds thee—now, thy flaming blade
Brandish'd aloft, strikes realms with dread,
Heaven's fierce destroyer!

See Mirth, with wine-dipp'd roses crown'd:
Vain is the dance's mazy round!
Vain, vain the lute's soft warbling sound!
For thy fell form is there.

Now, in the Asp's envenom'd fang,
And now, where threat'ning billows hang
O'er the wreck'd bark, and now mid clang
Of clashing arms thou art.

Mark the grim Lion—crouch'd he lies
With bristling mane and flaming eyes—
He roars...he springs...thy mandate flies,
And the pale victim bleeds.

Loud howls the blast; now fiercely glare
Heaven's vollying bolts; wrapt now the air
In tenfold night; I see thee there,
Guiding the tempest.

But chief, thou lov'st the bloody fray
Where hostile thousands, thousands slay,
And sulphurous smoke obscures the day,
And the hoarse trumpet brays.

Thy giant limbs what frenzy shakes?
Why hiss with tenfold rage thy snakes?
Is it some dreaded fiend that wakes
Thine utmost ire?

Why that wild laugh?—'tis guilt that dies
Thy snaky scourge—thy fiery eyes
Harrow his soul—dire spectres rise,
And hunt the unknown before him.

But oh! far other is thy mien,
Fled are thy terrors when serene,
Virtue soars hence—thou then art seen
Like some kind angel.

Mild as the gentlest gales of even,
Glad then as morn, the summons giv'n;
Thou bear'st the unfetter'd soul to heav-
On wings of rapture.

Be such, Oh death! on me thy hand,
Thus gently breathe thy stern command,
And let no foul remembrance brand
Reflection's latest hour.

But come astray'd in d zzling light—
Bid op'ning heaven burst on my sight,
And chaunting seraphs hail my flight,
To realms beyond thy power.

From the West Chester Federalist.

THE SPORTSMAN.

Many years ago Mr. Printer, I belonged to a jovial company of fox hunters, that was formed in Chester and Montgomery counties. Many is the morning that, with the earliest dawn, we have been hard at the brush; the horns sounding so shrilly, and echoing from hill to hill—the hounds in full cry, their voices mingled with the hark-away of the huntsman; and the steed, 'his neck like the rainbow,' springing hedges and ditches, as if eager for the game. Ah! sir, we have no such sport now-a-days. Dogs, horses and men have all degenerated.—Yet while I sigh for the joys that are gone to me forever, I recall the remembrance of past pleasures with delight; and if you are disengaged enough to listen to the story of a garrulous old man, I will relate to you an incident that occurred while you were "muling in your nurse's arms."

A friend of mine on the borders of Montgomery county, sent me word that he had got a famous hound, of a new breed, worth any dozen of the company's pack, and insisted that, before our general hunt, I should come up and spend the night with him and in the morning we would take out Jowler, and run down a fox—just to show his dog's superiority. I did not need a second invitation, I assure you, but waited upon him in the highest expectation of sport.

During the evening my friend launched out in the praises of his hound; I expressed some doubts from the looks of the dog, but he was half angry: There was never one, he said, so true—so fleet—so quick of scent—and so he continued on until the evening was far spent; and I thought, to be sure, that Nimrod himself was never blessed with so fine a hunter. Indeed I dreamed of the matter, and a little after midnight awakened the whole family by the cry of hark-away for I verily thought we were in full chase.

The morning came, and we started, after giving orders for a large chicken pie to be prepared for our afternoon repast. It was not long before the dog took to the woods, and his voice, clear—eager—shrill, burst upon the ear. "Aye, I told you so," said my friend, exultingly; "a fine fellow—none of your Chester pack like him;—Now puss will buy it, I'll warrant you." We put spurs to our horses, but found as we approached, that the dog did not seem to move. "He has him already," said my friend, his eye sparkling with delight. We reached the spot and behold! the dog had fallen into a hole, from which the limestone had been quarried, and could not get out. Evidently chagrined, my friend told me it was an accident that might have happened to the best dog in Christendom. I repeated my doubts, but his confidence seemed undiminished. He sprang from his horse—lifted Jowler from the pit, patted him a little, and bid him again—"to the woods."

It was a quarter of an hour before we heard the voice of this favourite again. At length in a valley some distance on our right, we heard him open with great spirit. Hope and joy again lighted up the countenance of my friend. We stopped a moment to mark the course puss was taking, and soon followed at full speed. Alack a day! the voice again became stationary: and reaching the place, lo! poor Jowler had come to a stone wall which he could not leap, and did not choose to go round; there, sitting on his rump, he was howling most piteous musick.

In short, the dog was not worth a baubee, with all his pretensions. He was a right promise much and do little. Our sport was baulked, for that day. We got home before the pie was ready: but I never could bring my friend, who was somewhat opinionated, to own but that Jowler was a good hunter.

Now Mr. Miner, if we caught no fox, the jaunt was not entirely lost to me; for I learned not to give too much credit to specious appearances—new things—and flattering promises.

When I see a young merchant at the very outset in business, assuming a very consequential air—talking largely of his profits—setting up his carriage, and handling his hardware with gloves, lest he should soil his hands, "Promise much, and do little," think's I, and old Jowler instantly occurred to my recollection.

When I see a young farmer who has just came to his patrimonial estate, busily engaged in planning pleasure grounds—tearing down the mansion house to build more fashionably, selling the comfortable family carriage and buying a new gig of half the value, but twice the cost—and neglecting the wheat, the barley, and the clover fields; "Take care young man, think's I, that's not the dog your father hunted with."

When I see a fair faced—well dressed pretty spoken girl, who can quote Scott and Byron, I like it well, for it is delightful to see a lady with a cultivated mind, though, to be sure, I would rather, if I was a young man, have the girl I loved, quote Cowper and Hannah Moore. But if chance should throw me unexpectedly into her parlour, and I find her slip shod, her hair uncombed—reading some favourite romance, "Promise much and do little," think's I, and the fox hunt rushes at once upon mind.

Political.

FEDERALISTS OF LOUDOUN!

The following article is published to give you a partial view of the grounds general Mason means to take to try to deprive many of you of the right of suffrage. But we think the general will be sorry that he had not withdrawn his protest to the whole, instead of a part of your votes, before the business is closed; for we think it must end in the discomfiture of the general, as it did at the polls in April last. Federalists, arouse from your lethargy! Will you still stand with your arms folded, and see a man attempted to be forced upon you by the democrats as your representative? No, we say again, awake! and put your mark on the bad votes on general M's. list. We know of many, and we shall drag them forth.

Loudoun County, Sept. 1.

TO CHARLES F. MERCER, ESQ.

SIR,—In conformity with the notice I gave you in May last of my intention to contest the validity of your election to congress, I now proceed to give you further notice that I protest against the votes hereinafter mentioned, and which were given for you in this county at the last congressional election in this district.

I reserve the right to protest against any other votes on your poll which may be defective, and I also reserve the right to urge any other objections than those now assigned to the votes against which I now protest.

My delay in giving you this notice has proceeded from the difficulty of procuring the information upon which it is founded, and from the disordered state of my health for nearly four months past.

Charleston, Sept. 16.

LATEST FROM AMELIA ISLAND.

By a gentleman passenger in the sloop Hermit, arrived yesterday morning from St. Mary's, we have received the following intelligence:

On the 4th instant, Gen. Mac Gregor resigned the command of the Patriot troops stationed on Amelia Island. He stated that his reasons for resigning, were that he had been deceived by the company who were to supply him with the necessary means to carry on the war in Florida. He and his lady had gone on board the privateer Gen. Mac Gregor, bound to Baltimore—Colonels Posey and Parker, with a number of officers & men had abandoned the cause. The force on the Island was about 40, officers & men. There were lying opposite the Island, the Buenos Ayrean privateer brig Morgiana, of 18 guns and about 100 men; the National brig St. Joseph, of 10 guns and 17 men; the privateer General Mac Gregor, of 10 guns and 65 men. The Venezuelian privateer schr Jupiter, had arrived on the 9th instant, with a French hermaphrodite brig, a prize, loaded with sugar and coffee.

On the night of the 8th Sept. about 350 Spanish troops principally *, arrived on the Island; and on the morning of the 9th, attacked the patriots about a mile fr. the town of Fernandina, but were beaten off with the loss of a major and horse killed, and one taken prisoner. The loss of the Patriots was 2 killed and 4 wounded. On the night of the 10th, they made another attack and were again beaten off without the loss of any on either side.

A small Spanish schooner arrived on the 11th instant, from the coast of Africa, with slaves; not knowing the place was in the hands of the Patriots, went in and was taken possession of by the Morgiana.

Richmond, Sept. 16.

An informal application has been made to the legal authority of this city, to arrest the circulation of certain engraved paper brought from Baltimore. No affidavit was made—no evidence offered—the legal authority, therefore, declined interfering. The case is handed over to the jurisdiction of the press: and we cheerfully incur the responsibility of stating the following circumstances, as they were represented to us:

On the 24th ult a certain person arrived in the northern stage, and put up at the Bell Tavern—who since states himself to be the agent of the "Independent Manufacturing Company of Baltimore."

On the 30th, another person, who styles himself president of the same company, arrived from the same quarter, and put up at the same house.

A contract was soon after made by the agent or president, or both, with a coal merchant of this city, for 5000 bushels of coal, to be paid for principally in the notes of the same company.

While the coal is shipping, the merchant writes to his correspondent in Baltimore to enquire the value of the paper. The reply, that the company is scarce worth one dollar; that a charter was granted in 1815 or '16, by the legislature of Maryland, under such a denomination, but that the capital had never been paid in.

On receipt of this intelligence, the contract for coal is at an end: another, which was in agitation, for 1000 bbls. of flour, to be paid for in the same paper, was arrested. The keeper of the Bell received a hint of the letter from Baltimore: he immediately presented their bill for tavern expences: they were unable to pay it; he had them arrested, and clapped them in jail. Here was the president and agent of a banking company in jail, for a tavern bill of sixty or seventy dollars! On Saturday last, one of them was let out on giving up a watch, and in the course of the day, the whole bill, and of course both the parties were discharged.

New facts have since come to light, viz. that on the way from Fredricksburg to this city, notes to the amount of $2,500 were put into the hands of a merchant, to be disposed of for such articles as he could buy for this paper—say wheat, timber, chairs, &c. for their benefit. One or two of these notes had been passed off by the merchant in this city; a $50 note for instance to a cabinet maker for chairs; which notes have been redeemed by the merchant, since suspicion was excited of the solvency of the paper.

The president and agent have not been idle—They, too have passed off some of the notes.

They are said to have notes of $5, 10, 50, 100, and 1000 dollars (post notes.)

One is now before us; it runs in the name of "The president and directors of the Independent Manufacturing Co. of Baltimore"—signed, Baltimore, 24th of May, 1817, Andrew Ray, president; E. Gillespy, Treasurer—and headed, "Char ered by the state of Maryland"—No engravers name to it! It is neatly executed, and on good paper.

It is said, that after making a dash in Richmond, they intended making a southern excursion, sweeping as much cotton, &c. as they could collect in Charleston.

☞ If editors will circulate the preceding circumstances, the intended trip may, however, be defeated. Rich. Enq.

The whimsical author of Tristam Shandy,—and I would wager my best pair of sattinett trowsers that he was as worthy, aye, and as devotional too, as the greatest of his square-faced brethren—Sterne, I think, somewhere asserts that "every time a man laughs he draws a nail from his coffin." It is well known that our unluckly natures makes us ready enough to put them in, a dozen times a day, either by some habit of dissipation or irregularity of life, or by the indulgence of those fretful dispositions of the heart which are forever wasting our frames and shortening our limited terms of existence; and we ought, therefore, to improve every means we can of extracting them. The debt of usefulness we owe to the author of our existence, renders it an imperious duty that we should strive to prolong that existence, and attach to it those comforts he has placed in our way without prohibiting their indulgence. One of these, and not the least of them, is the power we have of making ourselves merry with whatever is unseemly, ridiculous, or absurd, in itself or in its application. This merriment produces the grand restorer of health and spirits—laughter.—Those who consider the exercise of this faculty as degrading the nobleness of our minds, and as tending to dispose them to a laxity of principle and conduct, should remember that the same sage who declares it to be "better to weep than to laugh," "always says there is a time for all things," and, if I am not greatly in error, especially mentions one for laughing. Fortunately for mankind few are deterred from considerations of this sort from taking her attack and were again beaten off, hout the loss of any on either side.

One of these, and not the least em, is the power we have of making elves merry with whatever is un- ly, ridiculous, or absurd, in itself or s application. This merriment pro- es the grand restorer of health and ts—laughter.—Those who consider exercise of this faculty as degrading obleness of our minds, and as tend- o dispose them to a laxity of princi- and conduct, should remember that ame sage who declares it to be "bet- o weep than to laugh," "always there is a time for all things," and, m not greatly in error, especially ions one for laughing. Fortunate- or mankind few are deterred from iderations of this sort from taking their fill of this delectable treat. This is emphatically a laughing world; though man is the only animal possessed of the noble faculty. Perhaps this is his most unequivocal characteristic: that of speech, or reason, of shape, and almost every other one might be disputed by his fellow beings; but this shows him to be of a distinct and superior make. And I think it is susceptible of proof that he who is most distinguished in this particular is by so much as he excels in it above his fellow men.

Certain proverbs,—(and our stock of proverbs contain a prodigious fund of good sense and just remark, insomuch that I am nearly willing to allow man to be equally a proverbial and laughing animal) certain proverbs, I say, touching this point, have been of late wonderfully misapplied. "Per risum multum possis cognoscere stultum," the Romans used to say; and we have the same idea in language equally vague;—"a fool is known by much laughing." This by no means implies that the fool is given to laughing; but that there is a fool in company at whom the wits laugh. Pope, in setting out on his enquiry into the most intricate subject on earth, gravely proposes to "laugh where we must," rightly supposing that no one was capable of attending to such investigations who was not an immoderate laugher. Indeed the whole host of sensible moralists have declared that the freaks of folly were laughable;—and the best of them have set the example themselves. Among the ancient philosophers, we hear of few that were very demure in their behaviour; and Democritus was equally celebrated as a sage and a laugher. It is wholly unnecessary, however, to ransack the ancient records for instances of particular worthies who evinced a creditable regard for this unrivalled accomplishment; it is sufficient to remark that a very small number of those whose names have descended to us, are mentioned as having been grave and serious in their general demeanor; and it is therefore reasonable to conclude, that the rest were in their time right hearty laughers.

It is still probable that this science has kept pace with the improvements of modern times and received its greatest polish from the present generation. Indeed, this enlightened age acquires no little glory from the high regard in which it holds the exercise of our risible faculties. It seems to have new modelled, if not improved the idea of Shaftsbury, that "ridicule is the test of truth," and to have considered it moreover as the test of politeness. But as the greater part of what forms the polite circle of a town cannot be supposed to possess thoughtfulness enough to afford any great merriment to the company by their own wit or humour, they contrive to give due credit to others for their exertions by joining the most lustily in the general laugh. Hence arises an important argument in favor of my position that laughter is a sign of wisdom. The slightest observation would convince any one that the most hearty laughs proceed from those who least understand the joke; and that this immoderate appearance of merriment is resorted to merely to conceal his own ignorance of the jest; which is proof conclusive that laughing is thought an evidence of prudence and discernment. Fauquier Land for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale his farm, called "CULLINS," situated in the county of Fauquier, on Kettle Run, and adjoining the lands of Messrs. Samuel Weaver, Jacob Weaver, and others, 7 miles from Fauquier Court House, 33 from Alexandria, and 3 from the Buckland Mills, containing about 400 acres; a considerable portion of which is now in very heavy timber, the balance cleared and in cultivation, including about 80 acres of the first quality bottom land, which, with a small portion of labor, might be made to produce a large quantity of hay. This land lies well, and is in a good neighborhood, and finely watered, Kettle Run passing thro' the farm. To a person disposed to purchase land for the purpose of cultivating and improving it himself, the above offers great advantages, as the plaster Paris & clover acts on no land more efficaciously than on this.

Also, one other farm, lying immediately adjoining, containing the like number of 400 acres; about one half of which has been cleared, the balance well set in timber.

The above farms will be sold together or separately, as may suit purchasers.—For terms, which will be liberal, apply to the subscriber, residing near the premises.

A very handsomely improved and desirable lot at the lower end of the town, formerly the residence of the late Jacob Duckett, Esq. on which, besides a neat dwelling, is every other convenient house for a family.

Cancer Farm to Rent.

THIS Farm lies on Bull Run, in the county of Prince-William, and is distant from Alexandria 20 miles, from Dumfries 15 miles, and contains about 600 acres of arable land, equal if not superior in its adaption to the growth of Indian corn and small grain, to any land in the neighborhood, and is remarkable for its quickness in the production of native grass. This Farm has heretofore rented from 4 to $500, but being somewhat reduced from its original state of fertility, by an injudicious course of cultivation, and the enclosures being out of order, I will take a much less sum, provided I can get a tenant who will adopt that plan which is calculated to restore it to its original state of fertility.

I propose to rent it to one who will dispense with all division or cross fences, except one for a pasture, divide it into 4 shifts, appropriate one for a permanent pasture, the other three for cultivation, and to exclude the grazing of all kinds of stock from that which is reserved for cultivation.

Possession can be had immediately.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, particularly in New-York Philadelphia Baltimore Petersburg Richmond Norfolk Edenton Wilmington Charleston and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons in each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has under Providence preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficatious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops

For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation of various dangerous complaints arising from worms and from obstructions or foulness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of children—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.
